

JAPAN'S ENVOY HERE GIVES OUT DEMANDS ACCEPTED BY CHINA

Tokyo Takes Care to Avoid Conflict With Territorial Integrity.

LONDON, May 9.—It is officially announced through the Japanese embassy here that China has accepted Japan's final terms as laid down in the revised series of demands.

Japan's demands in China, as finally modified and accepted by the Peking government, were made public at the Japanese embassy here today.

The Japanese, it was explained, had made it their main object to make their "proposals," as they were called, meet the new situation created by the war between Japan and Germany, to strengthen the friendly relations between Japan and China and thus to insure permanent peace in the Orient.

In formulating the proposals, it was stated, the Japanese government had special care to avoid anything which might be deemed in conflict with the principles of Chinese territorial integrity, equal opportunity, and the "open door," to which it was declared Japan has had occasion, time and again, to declare its adherence.

German Rights.
Among the proposals included in the Japanese note are those relating to the disposition of the German rights in the province of Shantung, those relating to the recognition of special position in interest which Japan possesses in South Manchuria and in eastern Inner Mongolia, and those relating to the solution of various questions which have for years been pending between the Japanese and Chinese governments.

In order to do all that she could to preserve peace, Japan agreed to waive for the present pressing Article V, which imposed on China the necessity of engaging competent Japanese as political, financial, and military advisers. It was these demands that China absolutely refused to agree to.

The Japanese government charges in this statement, that, contrary to previous agreements to keep the Japanese proposals secret during the negotiations, the Chinese officials made them public in various exaggerated forms and endeavored to stir up ill feeling of the powers against Japan.

Japan says further that China caused the conference to be dissolved by publishing in the newspapers with a view to hindering the progress of the negotiations by fabricating news detrimental to Japan; that she tried to shake the confidence of Japan's ally by demanding unconditional retrocession of Kiaochow and an indemnity for the damage caused by the war between Japan and Germany; and that she has shown from the first lack of sincere desire for a satisfactory conclusion of the negotiations.

Payment of Indemnity.
In regard to the unconditional return of Kiaochow and the payment of an indemnity to China, Japan says that the attitude of China during the recent negotiations has been so unfriendly that she does not feel obligated to fulfill her original promise. She says further, that after having driven Germany out, something China was incapable of doing, she wishes to insure the absolute integrity of that territory in the future and prevent Germany ever again getting control of her former "sphere of influence."

The modified proposals are practically as follows:

One—Japanese subjects to be permitted to buy or lease land in South Manchuria for commercial or agricultural purposes and to be permitted to travel or reside in that territory and carry on any class of business. They shall observe the Chinese police laws and regulations approved by the Japanese consuls, and pay the Chinese taxes approved by their own consuls.

Two—In inner eastern Mongolia the Japanese are to be permitted to engage in joint agriculture and auxiliary enterprises with Chinese. China is to consult Japan first if contemplating either railway loans or loans to be secured by taxes.

Must Give Approval.
Third—In respect to the Han-Yeh-Ping Company, the Chinese government shall approve the agreement that may be concluded in the future between the company and Japanese capitalists for

"Whole Civilized World Dazed by Crime"

DUBLIN, May 9.—The lord mayor of Dublin, in issuing an appeal for help for the Lusitania survivors, says that the staggering news of "this prearranged murder of hundreds of innocent passengers is an unprecedented shock to the whole civilized world, which stands dazed and horror-stricken at this stupendous atrocity, a monstrous, dastardly crime."

its joint undertaking. China shall not confiscate it or nationalize it without the consent of the interested Japanese capitalists. Nor shall China permit it to contract any foreign loan other than Japanese.

A number of the disputed points of the original proposals are to be kept on record for future negotiation. They are as follows:

1. That the Chinese government will, in case it be deemed necessary in the future, employ Japanese advisers. That in case Japanese subjects desire to lease or purchase land for the purpose of building schools and hospitals in the interior, the Chinese government will permit them to do so.

Railway Concessions.
That the Chinese government will grant to Japan the desired railway concessions in South China in case it becomes clear that there is no objection from any other power, or in any event not enter into negotiations with any power regarding the railways without first giving Japan the opportunity to reach an agreement with the party who, in the opinion of the Chinese government, is opposed to the proposed lines.

2. That the question of the freedom of preaching by Japanese missionaries will be left open for further discussion.

3. Regarding Pukien province, the Chinese government engage not to grant any other power the right to a naval station or military establishment on or along the coast, and that no establishment shall be built with foreign capital on the coast of the province.

Japan states that if at the close of the war she is allowed free disposal of Kiaochow by the allies she return it to China under the following conditions:

1. Opening of Kiaochow bay as a commercial port.

2. Establishment of a Japanese settlement in the locality to be designated by Japan.

3. Establishment, if required by the powers, of an international settlement, the Japanese and Chinese governments regarding the disposal of the German public structures and properties.

FORTY BABIES DEAD ON THE LUSITANIA

Only Eight Saved So Far, and Some of Them Are Likely to Succumb.

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the long list of passengers who left on the Lusitania a week ago yesterday appear the names of many women, followed by the two words "and infant." In the second cabin alone there were twenty such, besides other children of tender years, yet old enough to be outside the infant classification. Of the children on board late advices show that but eight are known to have been saved, and it is doubtful whether the hardships and the time permitted to their parents to seek out and find places in the boats for the little ones, was all too brief. Many went to their death in the rescue, but a few minutes before they had galloped in gleeful play, while their distraught mothers died in the act of trying to find them.

About Forty Are Missing.
With the children who were of an age that made it possible for them to play with their comrades, the chances of rescue were small indeed. Play places for the youngsters are many on board such ships as the Lusitania, and the time permitted to their parents to seek out and find places in the boats for the little ones, was all too brief. Many went to their death in the rescue, but a few minutes before they had galloped in gleeful play, while their distraught mothers died in the act of trying to find them.
